```
> restart
> with(plots):
> f(n) := n \cdot \log(n)
> g(n) := \log(n):
> h(n) := n^2
     f(n) := n \cdot \log(n) :
                                                    h := n \mapsto n^2
                                                                                                                     (1)
plot0 := plot(g(n), n = 0..10, y = 0..10):
     plot1 := plot(f(n), n = 0..10, y = 0..10):
      plot2 := plot(h(n), n = 0..10, y = 0..10): 8-
                   6.
                   4.
                   2-
                  0
                                                                                                       10
                                     2
                                                                      6
                                                                                       8
                                                              n
```